POLICY SECTION

1.0 Purpose

1.1 This policy applies to all staff, volunteers, people who use services, carers and families. This policy details how a Trans* person should be treated in a dignified, non-discriminatory way.

1.2 Provide guidance for our Trust employees on the expectations and other considerations that may be necessary for people who use services who are Trans* or are undergoing gender identity changes.

1.3 Ensure that Trans* people and individuals whose gender identity does not match their sex assigned at birth are treated fairly and supported in their recruitment and career development.

1.4 When a person who uses services is identifying as Trans*, with their consent, their GP informs Primary Care Support England (PCSE) who create a new record or identity for the patient on the National Spine along with a new NHS number.

1.5 To support our Trust in its delivery of inclusive services and to ensure that it does not breach the Equality Act 2010. Under this legislation it now states that a Trans* person no longer must be under medical supervision or have a Gender Reassignment Certificate (GRC) to prove that they are Trans*.

1.6 A Trans* person MUST be treated as the gender they identify as.

2.0 Policy Statement

This policy is our Trust's commitment to ensure individuals who are proposing to undergo, are undergoing or have undergone a process or part of a process for the purpose of changing their birth assigned gender (by changing physiological or other attributes of their sex) do not experience discrimination, harassment and victimisation whilst in our Trust's care and employment. This process is called a transition.

PROCEDURE SECTION

6.0 Roles and Responsibilities

6.1 Chief Executive and Executive Directors – collectively and individually are responsible for ensuring that the necessary arrangements are in place to eliminate any unlawful discrimination and promote equality of opportunity and good relations when carrying out their work.

6.2 Trust Board – holds overall responsibility and accountability for overseeing, leading and promoting equality and human rights. Board members will endeavour to ensure our Trust conforms to the latest legislative requirements and to ensure that staff are aware of their legal and morale responsibilities.

6.3 Managers are responsible for promoting equal opportunities in practice and for preventing discrimination, whether direct or indirectly, towards people who use services, carers and families, colleagues or anyone else who is connected with their work.

6.4 Line Managers are responsible for

- Ensuring all staff are aware of this policy and attend any relevant training provided by SABP.
- Challenging staff who discriminate, and ensure that the relevant procedures are followed.
- Challenging any inappropriate behaviour, discrimination and harassment based on gender identity; including non-binary identities.
- Support staff to challenge discrimination from others
- Agree a plan with a staff member who is proposing to transition to ensure that they are supported throughout the process
- Ensure that a Trans* person is addressed and treated as the gender they identify with 6.5 SABP LGBT+ Network is responsible for overseeing the development and monitoring of this policy and for promoting good practice.

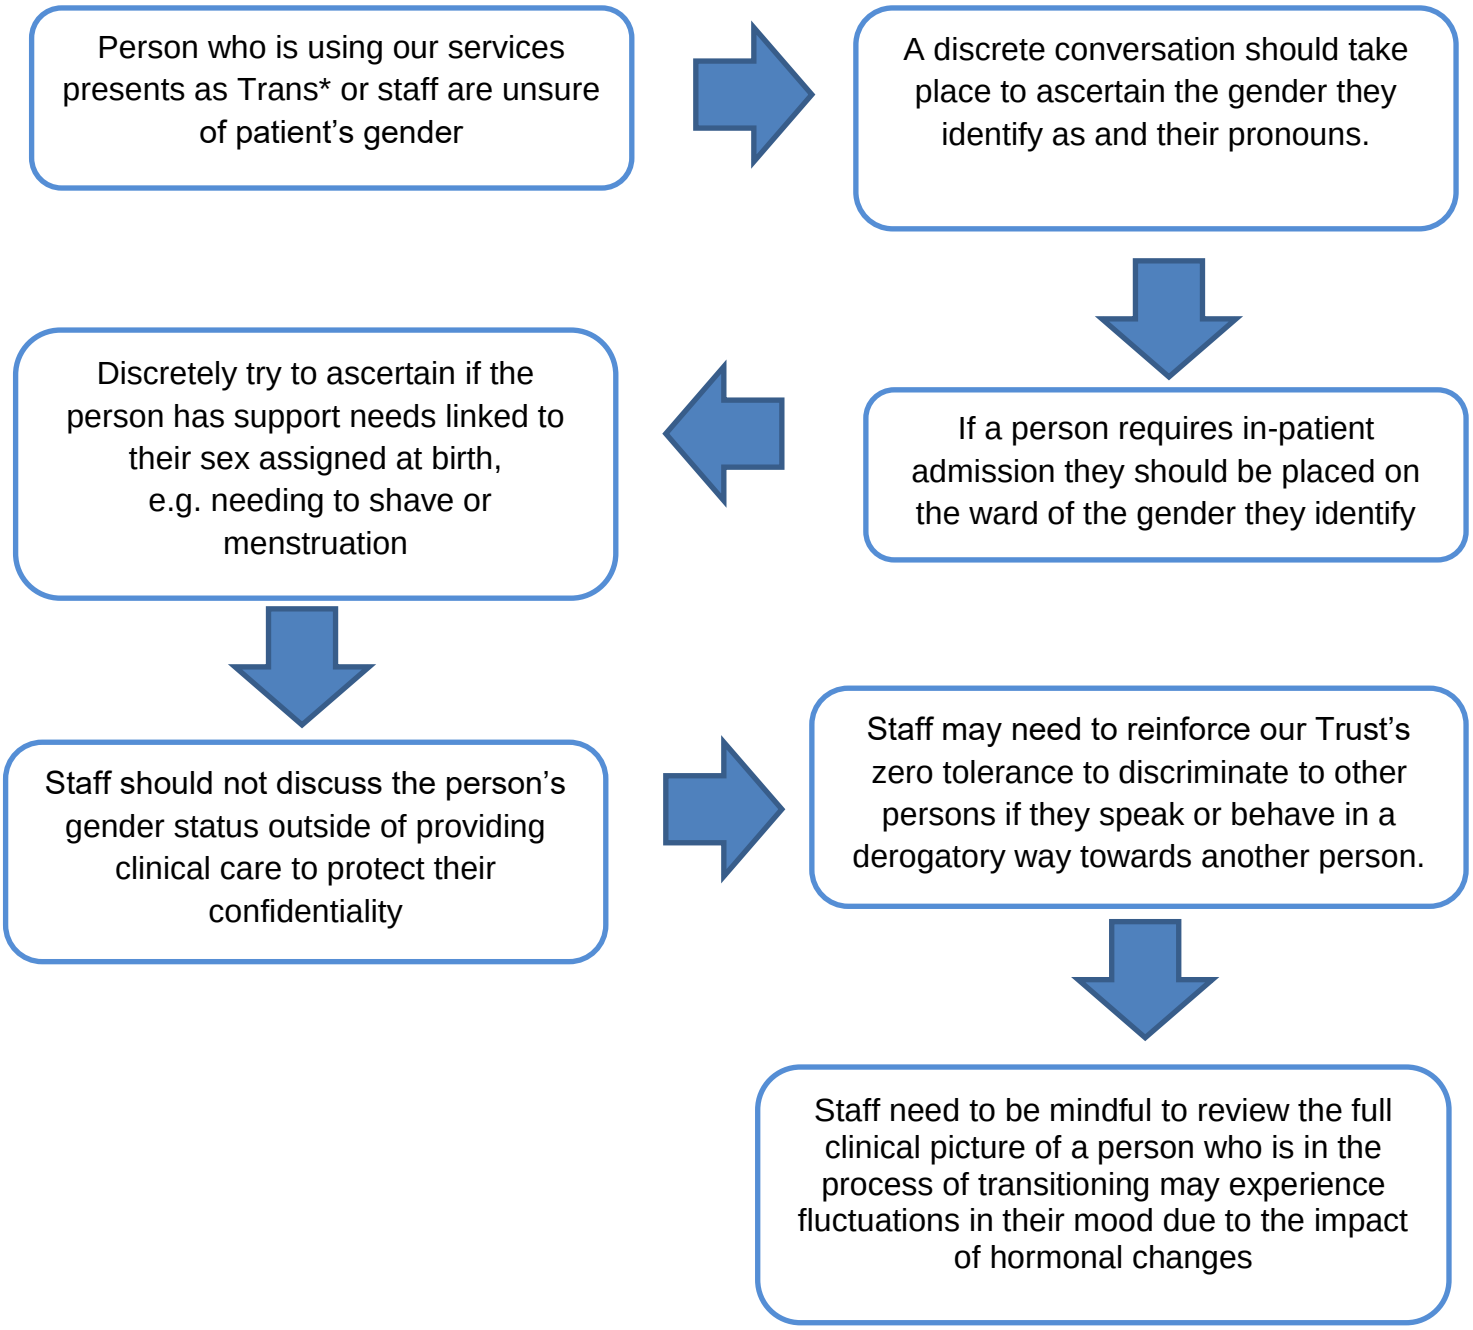
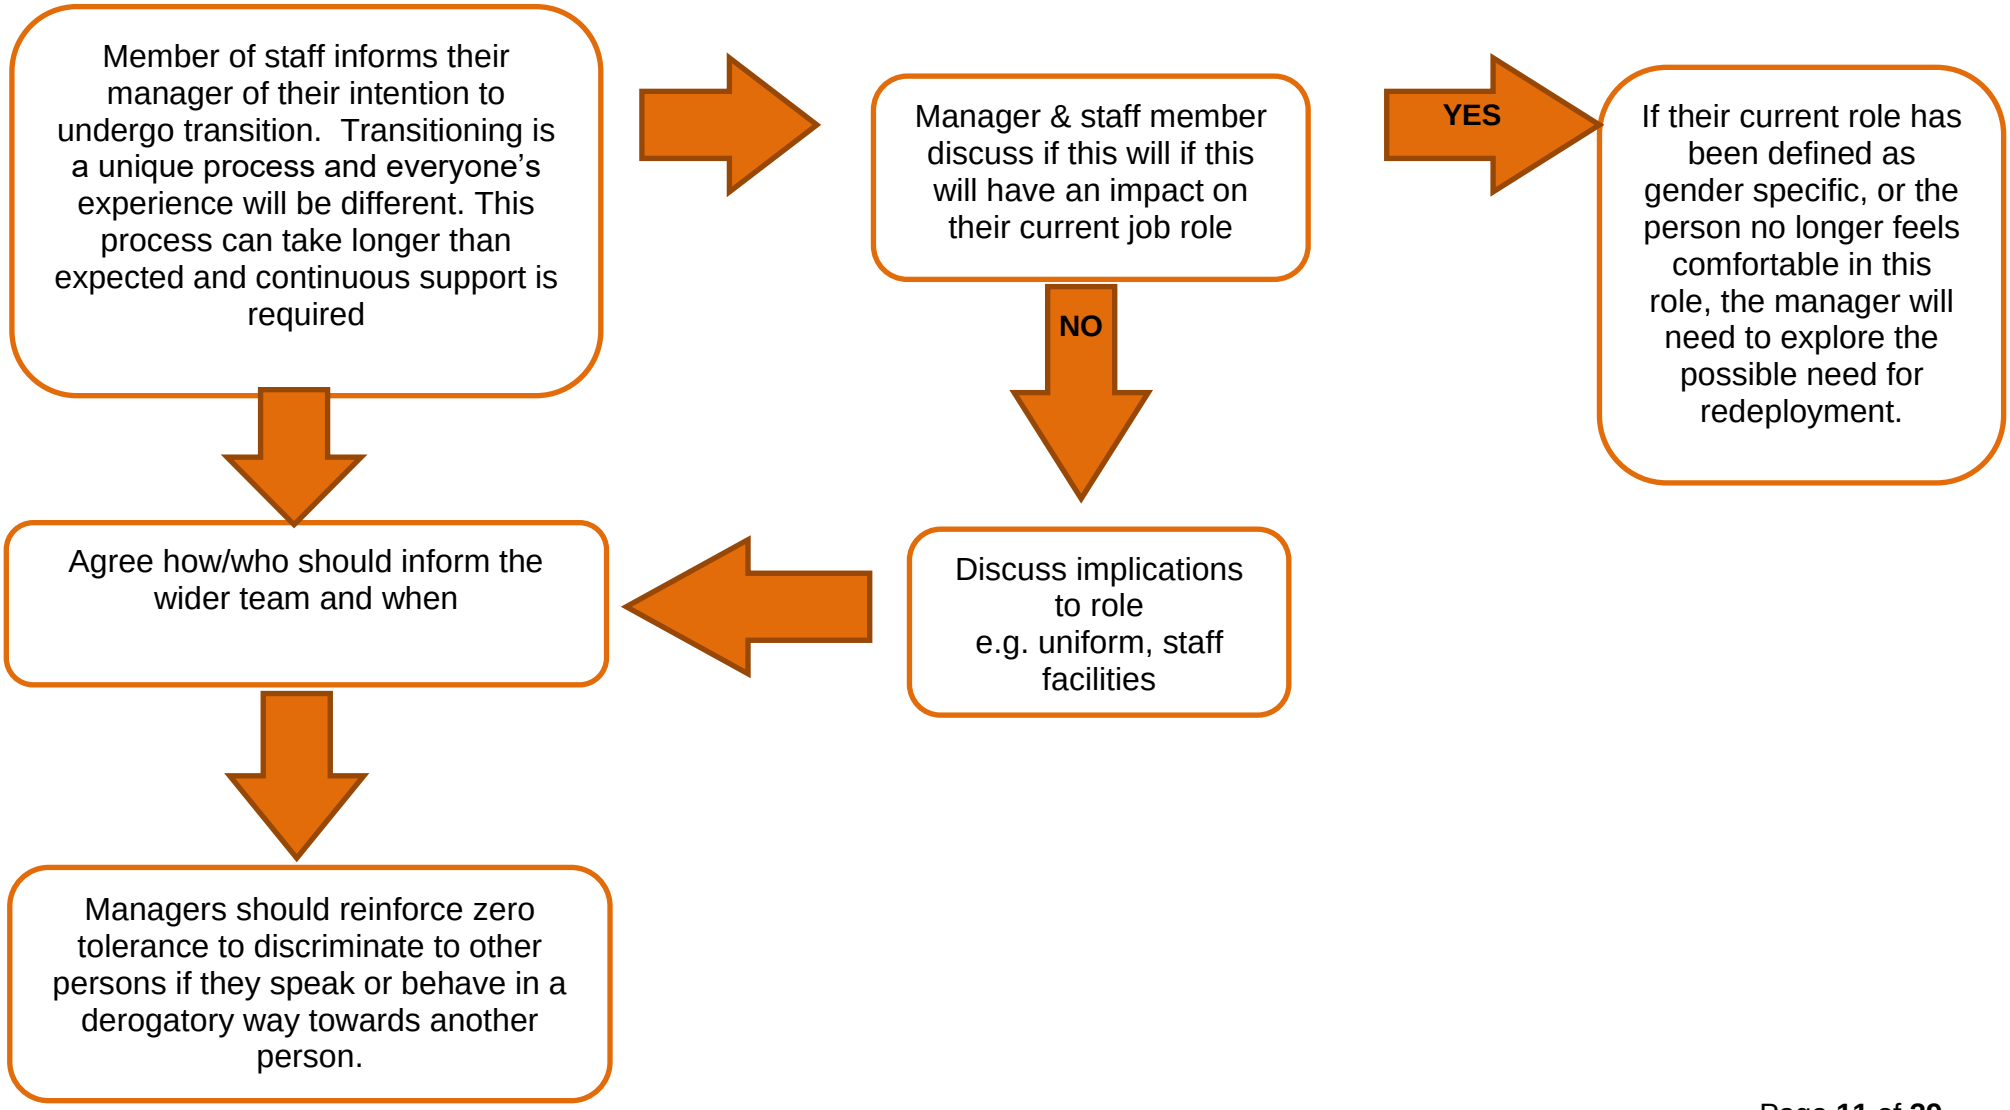
6.6 All Staff – should be aware of their own conduct and behaviour and that it is their responsibility to ensure they do not discriminate against anyone in relation to their work. This includes people who use services, carers and families, colleagues, volunteers, contractors, agency staff or anyone else who relates to their work.

7.0 Procedure Flow Chart

People who are using services



Staff who identify as Trans*



8.0 Procedure Statement

This procedure sets out our Trust's responsibilities as a service provider and an employer of Trans* people. As gender identity is a protected characteristic under the Equality Act 2010 we must ensure that people are not discriminated against or disadvantaged by service delivery or prejudice of our employees, contractors or agency staff, other patients or the general public.

9.0 Introduction

This section and the sections below are for colleagues and managers of staff who are Trans*, and staff who are in contact with people who use services.

9.1 Trans* is an umbrella term used to cover numerous types of gender identity labels such as Trans*, Trans* man, Trans* woman and non-binary. See glossary for explanations. Gender identity may not fit neatly into society's idea of gender. For example, they may not feel they fit within one gender or the other. They may not assign with their assigned birth gender or any gender at all.

9.2 Remember that every Trans* person is different and will want to approach their transition differently. Managers to ensure that individuals are consulted with and asked about how they want to approach different concerns.

10.0 Gender Pronouns

10.1 Trans* people sometimes do not like to use 'traditional', cisgender pronouns ("he/his/him" or "she/her/hers"). Some people prefer gender neutral pronouns which would normally be considered plural ("they/them/theirs") and some people prefer singular words which can include "xe, ze, hirs".

10.2 Good practice is to not assume anyone's pronoun or gender identity, and ask people their preferences and use them. More organisations are now including pronouns in their email signatures, on business cards and in delegate packs/ID cards for training.

10.3 The person should be asked how they wish to be addressed and the correct pronoun to be used always. For example, you can ask:
"What pronouns do you use" or "My name is Sam and my pronouns are she and her; what about you?"

10.4 Some people may prefer to be just called by their name and avoid gender pronouns altogether; which needs to be respected.

10.5 When someone is referred to with the wrong pronoun it can make them feel disrespected, invalidated, dismissed, devalued, triggered, alienated or often all of these things.

11.0 Legislative Framework

11.1 Equality Act 2010: Enacted in October 2010 and aimed to simplify and harmonise protection offered to people from discrimination, harassment and victimisations. Under Equality Act, Trans* people should expect employers, colleagues, people who use services, carers and families and contracted suppliers to refrain from:

- Verbal, Physical or Psychological discriminatory behaviour, bullying, victimising, punishing someone who takes time off for treatment, compromising the privacy and dignity of Trans* people, using previous names without consent, deliberately misgendering a person

11.2 Gender Recognition Act 2004 (GRA)

11.2.1 The GRA covers how Trans* people can have their identity legally recognised which follows from being given a full Gender Recognition Certificate (GRC) following review by a Gender Recognition Panel.

11.2.2 The lack of a GRC must not be used to disadvantage a Trans* person. Asking to see a GRC is nearly always inappropriate and it may be regarded as harassment. Identification of patients and staff can be provided by passports or driving licences. It is an offence to disclose that someone is Trans* if they have a GRC,

11.3 Data Protection Legislation of 2018

11.3.1 Gender transition falls within a special category or personal data. This means that such data can only be processed in certain limited circumstances, e.g. where the employee, people who use our services and carers gives explicit consent or where it is necessary for carrying out rights and obligations under employment law.

11.3.2 Keeping records: The manager should ensure that all documents, public references and employment details reflect the acquired gender of the employee. This will prevent any breach of confidentiality.

11.3.3 A person can request that their gender be changed in a record by a statutory declaration, but this does not give them the same rights as those that can be made by the Gender Recognition Act 2004. The formal legal process is that a Gender Reassignment Certificate is issued by a Gender Reassignment Panel. At this time a new NHS number will be issued, a corresponding new Summary Care Record created under the new identity and the old NHS number discontinued resulting in a warning message within the original record on our Electronic Patient Record (EPR). From this point forward the new identity should be registered on our EPR and all associated data recorded there with no further reference to the person's former identity.

11.3.4 For this reason the individual should be encouraged to sign our Trust's "Consent form for people who are Trans*or who are undertaking transition" as early as possible in the gender reassignment process so that clinical staff do not lose track of any clinical history essential for safe continuation of care. This form provides consent for our Trust to record within each of the two clinical Electronic Patient Records a single, prominent cross-reference to the other and to discuss and agree if any information should be transferred from the old record to the new one.

11.3.5 It is also important to discuss with the person who uses our services the benefits of ensuring the same in respect of records held with other health-related organisations.

12.0 Inpatient Services

12.1 A person who is admitted to one of our hospitals should be in a single sexed environment of the gender they have identified as. However, they may not prefer this so a discussion will need to take place. The person may be asked if they prefer the privacy of a side room.

12.2 If the patient is near the beginning of their gender identity process staff need to be aware that they may need sensitive support for some areas of their care.

12.3 The person may be anxious and sensitive due to having high hormone levels from taking medication. Additionally, the person may be anxious about how they will be treated while in hospital due to poor previous experiences of healthcare.

12.4 If an inpatient is intersex, or non-gendered, they must be asked how they wish to be addressed, which pronouns to use, and which ward they wish to be accommodated on. A side or single room may be more appropriate but may not always be available.

12.5 It is important that the ward environment meets the needs of everyone – and does not make predetermined gender-based assumptions. This may be particularly important for those people who identify as Trans*.

12.6 Where a patient (Cis or Trans*) has a history of sexual abuse or exploitation, an individual care plan must be put in place. It may also be pertinent to consider the suitability of the placement being offered. If it is in a person's best interests / they express a preference, they should be cared for in a single-sex ward.

12.7 In a case such as in 12.6 staff should communicate to all patients and or their carers the situation that arises, ensuring sensitivity to all views and acting accordingly to protect the privacy and dignity of all patients.

12.8 Where the situation, for example, relates to Trans* patients, staff should do everything they can to respond to the wishes of all patients, while still protecting the dignity and legal rights of the Trans* person.

12.9 There may be some circumstances where it is lawful to provide a different service or exclude a Trans* person from a single sex ward of their preferred gender. This must be proportionate means of achieving a legitimate aim. Any decision to do this must therefore be made on a case-by-case basis, and based on:

- an objective and evidence-based assessment of the circumstances and relevant information
- respecting the rights and needs of the Trans* person and the detriment to them if they are denied access and balancing that against the needs of other service users and any detriment to them if the Trans* person is admitted.

13.0 Ways to improve services for Trans* People

13.1 Always respect a Trans* persons chosen pronouns. Don’t worry if you make a mistake when referring to someone, it happens and can be rectified by an apology and a commitment to try harder to get it right. Using correct pronouns promotes a professional atmosphere of respect and understanding.

13.2 Welcome Trans* people by promoting your service and displaying Trans* positive material in your department/ward.

13.3 Treat Trans* individuals as individuals and with respect; Trans* people are as unique and diverse as everyone else

13.4 If you are unsure about a person's gender identity or how they wish to be addressed, ask. If you let the person know that you are only trying to be respectful, your question will usually be appreciated. For instance, you can ask "what are your pronouns" or "what name would you like to be called"? It is important not to make assumptions about the identity, beliefs, concerns or sexual orientation of Trans* and gender non-conforming patients.

13.5 Ensure staff are fully aware of their obligations and procedures as stated in SABP Equality, Diversity and Human Rights and Dignity at Work policies and that they are up to date with any training that is offered.

13.6 Keep the focus on care rather than indulging in questions out of curiosity. You do not need to know what a person's primary or secondary characteristics are to place them in the appropriate area in your ward, for example. If you are not sure, ask the person themselves and respect their choices. Remember that the presence of a Trans* person in your ward or department is not always a training opportunity for other staff.

13.7 Never disclose a person's Trans* status or gender identity history to anyone who does not explicitly need the information for care or without the consent of the person Just as you would not needlessly disclose a person's HIV status, a person's gender identity is not an item for gossip.

14.0 Recruitment and Selection

This section relates to staff.

14.1 There are no intentional barriers to a person who identifies as Trans* and applying for employment within our Trust. All of those involved in the recruitment and section process, including staff, people who use services and carer representatives should be made aware of their responsibilities to select fairly and without prejudice

14.2 Applicants do not have to disclose their Trans* status during the recruitment and selection process, including at interview or as any condition of employment. It would be lawful to prevent someone from doing a job on the grounds of gender reassignment, for example where being a man or woman is a genuine occupational requirement for the job, as set out in the Sex Discrimination Act 1975, and our Trust can demonstrate that is reasonable to prevent the Trans* person from doing the job as a result. Exceptions will apply only in rare cases. The exceptions do not apply to someone with a gender recognition certificate (GRC) as long as they are the correct gender for the role.

15.0 Staff and volunteers already employed by SABP

15.1 If a member of staff or volunteer is proposing to go through gender reassignment a discussion should take place with their manager to negotiate a plan for this. Issues that may need to be considered are:

- Who will inform the staff team of the change? Information about gender reassignment is the property of the employee themselves and the employee going through this process will have ownership and will lead the decision-making process about whether, who and how anyone needs to be informed. The staff member may prefer the manager to do this.
- Is it necessary to offer the staff member redeployment to another position/department?
- Will the change of gender affect the job role e.g. does the role have a genuine occupational requirement to be a particular gender?
- What changes to the systems/records will be needed?
- Does the team require training?
- Awareness sessions should take place on two levels: General information about Trans* communities. Specific information to enable people to understand the needs of the individuals involved.

15.2 The staff member should be treated as their affirmed gender in the transition period. This will include wearing the appropriate uniform and using the gender's facilities.

15.3 Discrimination from staff, other people who use services or the public will not be tolerated.

15.4 Understanding the treatment timescales and time off work

15.5 Remember that treatment times and options vary and while some procedures may require less than two weeks absence from work, others may take much longer. Sometimes transitioning can take over 5 years. As per our Trust's Absence Management Policy, any absence from work for medical requirements would need to be covered by a medical certificate, therefore it would not impact a person's sickness record.

15.6 Please also refer to the Leave and Unpaid Leave Policy for additional information

16.0 Support available for Staff

16.1 The list below shows some of the options available to individuals who wish to seek support within SABP during a gender transition period.

17.0 Human Resources Department (HR)

17.1 An appointed advisor from within HR should be identified at an early stage in order both to offer support and to deal with any changes that need to be made to an individual's personal records. They will also be available to help with any implications within the affected team.

17.2 Occupational Health (OH) – A manager may wish to refer the individual to OH, or the person may wish to refer themselves for additional support and advice concerning any counselling needs or advice regarding the medical process of the transition.

17.3 Managers may also need advice regarding the needs of the individual and on how to support changes that may need to be made within the team or work environment.

18.0 Should colleagues or others be informed of a person transitioning?

18.1 Information about transitioning is the property of the employee themselves and the person going through this process will have ownership. They will lead the decision-making process about whether, who and how anyone needs to be informed.

18.2 Employers should not inform others that an employee is intending to undergo, or is undergoing, transitioning This is a private matter since this will have no bearing on that person's ability to do their job.

18.3 Employers need to be aware that if an employee is in possession of a GRC, it is unlawful to disclose their gender status without their consent.

19.0 Providing an Employment Reference

19.1 When our trust is asked to provide a reference for a Trans* person, our Trust must provide it, without communicating that the person is Trans*.

20.0 Professional Status or Qualifications

20.1 If our trust has to keep evidence of professional status or qualifications, we should discuss with the individual concerned on how to retain such evidence on file; as some certificates can be reissued. For example, if certificates are in the individual's original name, so as not to compromise or breach disclosure of protected information.

21.0 Dissemination and Implementation of this policy

21.1 Trans* awareness courses are available for staff.

21.2 Equality training for managers will include support for individuals that identify as Trans*.

22.0 Transphobia and Hate Crime

22.1 Transphobia can be defined as the irrational fear, dislike or prejudice against Trans* people. Please refer to our Trust's Bully and Harassment Policy.

22.2 A Hate Crime is when transphobia is acted out against someone, or they are being harassed, and it amounts to a criminal offence.

22.3 Any form of discrimination and hate crime is not acceptable by SABP; zero tolerance. There is a process for reporting such incidents.

22.4 It is important that behaviour of this nature is reported, this will ensure that the incident is investigated and the right level of support can be offered to the victim and/or witnesses.

23.0 How to report a hate crime or Safeguarding Concerns

23.1 Hate crime is where a crime is committed against someone specifically because of their gender/gender identity, ethnicity, disability, religious belief or sexual orientation. If a vulnerable adult is specifically targeted as a victim of crime this is a hate crime.

23.2 Hate crime needs to be reported directly to the Police.

23.3 Safeguarding concerns can be reported without consent; however the person should be informed unless it is felt that this would put them or others at risk.

23.4 All Safeguarding concerns must be reported to the Multi-Agency Safeguarding Hub (MASH). All safeguarding concerns must be reported on Datix. Please refer to the SABP Safeguarding Adults Policy for further information on processes.

Equality Analysis

The equality analysis guidance notes and template are provided to support you in meeting the requirements of the Public Sector Equality Duty which came into force on 5 April 2011.

You should use this template to record evidence that equality analysis has been carried out before policy decisions take place. The form is a written record that demonstrates that you have shown due regard to the need to eliminate unlawful discrimination, advance equality of opportunity and foster good relations with respect to the characteristics protected by equality law.

1. About the policy/project/change

Title of the policy / project / change:	Supporting People who are Trans* Policy
What are the intended outcomes / changes expected as a result of this policy / project / change:	Providing guidelines for staff, people who use services, carers and families
Are there links with other existing policies/projects: (if yes – provide details)	• Absence Management Policy • Bullying and Harassment Policy • Data Protection & Records Management Policy • Disciplinary Policy • Grievance Policy • Health, Safety and Wellbeing Policy • Human Rights and Equality Policy • Information Governance Policy • Leave Paid and Unpaid Policy • Mental Capacity Policy • Physical Healthcare Policy • Recruitment and Selection Policy • Safeguarding Adults Policy • Safeguarding Children's Policy

2. Decide if the policy / project / change is equality relevant

Does the policy/project involve, or have consequences for people using services, carers, employees or other people? If yes, please state the groups of people who are likely to be affected. If yes, then the policy/project is equality relevant. If no, you can skip to section 6. However the majority of Trust policies and projects are equality relevant because they affect people in some way.	This policy has been created to support staff and people who use services who have either transitioned, considering transitioning or are in the process of transitioning

3. Gathering evidence to inform the equality analysis

What evidence have you gathered to help inform this analysis? This can include evidence from national research, surveys & reports, interviews and focus groups, policy monitoring and evaluations from pilot projects, etc. If there are gaps in the evidence available under any of the characteristics, please explain why this is the case and state what actions will be taken to close the gaps as part of the action plan. Please ensure you check Annex C of the guidance notes for sources of evidence.

The Protected Characteristics & Evidence Using the relevant available evidence - what is known, understood or assumed about each of the equality groups / protected characteristics identified below that could be relevant to this policy / project / change. Record the sources of the evidence used for all the protected characteristics

4. Engagement and Involvement

Record the names of the people and/or groups involved in gathering evidence and/or testing the evidence against the policy / project / change. Who and how were they involved?
Who – name of individual / group(s) represented	How have these people been involved – e.g. meeting
LGBT+ Network Members	Working group held to review this policy
HR Business Partner for People with Learning Disabilities
People with lived experience
Policy Management Co-ordinator

5. Analysis of the potential impact of the policy / project / change

Based on the evidence you have gathered; describe any actual or likely impacts that may arise as a result of the decision and whether these are likely to be positive or negative. Where actual or likely impacts are identified, you should also state what actions will be taken to promote the likelihood of positive impacts as well as minimise or mitigate against possible or likely negative impacts, i.e. what can the Trust reasonably do to actively manage the consequences of its decision / action

Eliminate discrimination, harassment and victimisation: Does the policy / project / change, help eliminate discrimination, harassment and victimisation in any way? If yes, provide details. If no, provide reasons
Age	This policy is aimed to increase awareness and to help discriminate harassment and victimisation in any way.
Caring responsibilities
Disability
Gender identity
Marriage & civil partnerships
Pregnancy & maternity
Race / ethnicity
Religion or belief
Sex / gender
Sexual Orientation

Advance equality of opportunity: Does the policy / project / change, help develop equality of opportunity in any way? This could include removing or minimising disadvantages suffered by people due to their protected characteristics, taking steps to meet the needs of people from protected groups where these are different from the needs of other people, or encouraging people from protected groups to participate in activities where their participation is disproportionately low. If yes, provide details. If no, provide reasons
Age	This policy encourages the promotion of equality of opportunity and eliminating discrimination.
Caring responsibilities
Disability
Gender identity
Pregnancy & maternity
Race / ethnicity
Religion or belief

Sexual Orientation

Promote good relations between different groups: Does the policy / project / change, help foster good or improved relations between different groups in any way? If yes, provide details. If no, provide reasons.
Age	This policy encourages the promotion of equality of opportunity and eliminating discrimination. This policy is building bridges and good relations between people. .
Caring responsibilities
Disability
Gender identity
Pregnancy & maternity
Race / ethnicity
Religion or belief
Sexual Orientation

What do you consider the overall impact: Considering the combined impact of the analysis and the actions required to promote the likelihood of positive impacts and minimise or mitigate against potential negative outcomes – does the analysis support the implementation of the policy / project / change? This policy should have a positive impact and therefore should be implemented

6. Action Planning

Actions to be taken as a result of this analysis (add additional rows as required):	Name of person who will take this action	Date action due to be completed
1. Continue to provide Trans* Awareness training for our Trust.	LGBT+ Network	On-going

7. Authorisation

Name & job title of person completing this analysis:	SABP LGBT+ Network
Date of completion:	05th December 2020
Name & job title of person responsible for monitoring and reporting on the implementation of the actions arising from this analysis:	LGBT+ Network Chair
Name & job title of authorised person: (If there are doubts about the completeness or sufficiency of this equality analysis, seek advice from the Equality and Human Rights Team or the Legal Services & Reporting Manager in the Clinical Risk & Safety Team)	Lisa Musselwhite Chair of Policy Assurance Group Interim Head of Nursing – Quality and Assurance

Appendix 1

List of Definitions

	Definition
Agender	Person is internally ungendered
Androgyne	Person appearing and/or identifying as neither man nor woman, presenting a gender either mixed or neutral.
Bigender	A person whose gender identity is a combination of male/man and female/woman.
Binding	The process of flattening one's breasts to have a more masculine or flat appearing chest.
Bottom Surgery	Surgery on the genitals designed to create a body in harmony with a person's preferred gender expression.
Cisgender / Cis	describes someone who feels comfortable with the gender identity and gender expression expectations assigned to them based on their physical sex.
Coming Out	May refer to the process by which one accepts one's own sexuality, gender identity, or status as an intersexed person (to "come out" to oneself). May also refer to the process by which one shares one's sexuality, gender identity, or intersexed status with others (to "come out" to friends, etc.). This can be a continual, life-long process for homosexual, bi, trans*, and intersex individuals
Dead naming	Calling someone by their birth name after they have changed their name. This term is often associated with Trans* people who have changed their name as part of their transition.
Drag	The act of dressing in gendered clothing as part of a performance. Drag Queens perform in highly feminine attire. Drag Kings perform in highly masculine attire. Drag may be performed as a political comment on gender, as parody, or simply as entertainment. Drag performance does not indicate sexuality, gender identity, or sex identity.

FTM / F2M	Abbreviation for female-to-male Trans person.
Gender Binary	The idea that there are only two genders – male/female or man/woman and that a person must be strictly gendered as either/or. (See also 'Identity Sphere.')
Gender Cues	What human beings use to attempt to tell the gender/sex of another person. Examples include hairstyle, gait, vocal inflection, body shape, facial hair, etc. Cues vary by culture.
Gender Dysphoria	Used to describe when a person experiences discomfort or distress because there is a mismatch between their sex assigned at birth and their gender identity. This is also the clinical diagnosis for someone who doesn't feel comfortable with the sex they were assigned at birth. This is a medicalised term.
Gender Identity	The gender that a person sees themselves as. This can include refusing to label oneself with a gender. Gender identity is also often conflated with sexual orientation, but this is inaccurate. Gender identity does not cause sexual orientation. For example, a masculine woman is not necessarily a lesbian.
Gender-Neutral	Non-discriminatory language to describe relationships—e.g. "spouse" and "partner" are gender-neutral alternatives to the gender-specific words "husband," "wife," "boyfriend" and "girlfriend."
Gender Normative	A person who by nature or by choice conforms to gender based expectations of society. (Also referred to as 'Genderstraight'.)
Gender Oppression	The societal, institutional, and individual beliefs and practices that privilege cisgender (gender-typical people) and subordinate and disparage Trans* or gender variant people. Also known as "genderism."

	Definition
Gender Reassignment	Another way of describing a person's transition. To undergo gender reassignment usually means to undergo some sort of medical intervention, but it can also mean changing names, pronouns, dressing differently and living in their self-identified gender. Gender reassignment is a characteristic that is protected by the Equality Act 2010, and it is further interpreted in the Equality Act 2010 approved code of practice. It is a term of much contention and is one that Stonewall's Trans Advisory Group feels should be reviewed.
Gender Recognition Certificate (GRC)	This enables trans people to be legally recognised in their affirmed gender and to be issued with a new birth certificate. Not all trans people will apply for a GRC and you currently have to be over 18 to apply. You do not need a GRC to change your gender markers at work or to legally change your gender on other documents such as your passport.
Gender Variant/Gender Non-conforming	A person who either by nature or by choice does not conform to gender-based expectations of society
Genderqueer	A gender variant person whose gender identity is neither male nor female, is between or beyond genders, or is some combination of genders. Often includes a political agenda to challenge gender stereotypes and the gender binary system.
Identity Sphere	The idea that gender identities and expressions do not fit on a linear scale, but rather on a sphere that allows room for all expression without weighting any one expression as better than another.
Intergender	A person whose gender identity is between genders or a combination of genders.
Intersex	Someone whose sex a doctor has a difficult time categorizing as either male or female. A person whose combination of chromosomes, gonads, hormones, internal sex organs, gonads, and/or genitals differs from one of the two expected patterns.

	Definition
MTF / M2F	Abbreviation for male-to-female Trans* person
Non-binary	An umbrella term for people whose gender identity doesn't sit comfortably with 'man' or 'woman'. Non-binary identities are varied and can include people who identify with some aspects of binary identities, while others reject them entirely.
Packing	Wearing a phallic device on the groin and under clothing for any purposes including: (for someone without a biological penis) the validation or confirmation of one's masculine gender identity; seduction; and/or sexual readiness (for one who likes to penetrate another during sexual intercourse).
Pangender	A person whose gender identity is comprised of all or many gender expressions.
Passing	Describes a person's ability to be accepted as their preferred gender/sex
Person with a trans history	Someone who identifies as male or female or a man or woman, but was assigned the opposite sex at birth. This is increasingly used by people to acknowledge a trans past.
Sex Identity	How a person identifies physically: female, male, in between, beyond, or neither.
Sexual Reassignment Surgery (SRS)	A term used by some medical professionals to refer to a group of surgical options that alter a person's "sex". In most states, one or multiple surgeries are required to achieve legal recognition of gender variance. Also known as "Gender Confirming Surgery."
Stealth	This term refers to when a person chooses to be secretive in the public sphere about their gender history, either after

	Definition
	transitioning or while successful passing. (Also referred to as ‘going stealth’ or ‘living in stealth mode’.)
Top Surgery	This term usually refers to surgery for the construction of a male type chest, but may also refer to breast augmentation.
Trans*	An umbrella term to describe people whose gender is not the same as, or does not sit comfortably with, the sex they were assigned at birth. Trans* people may describe themselves using one or more of a wide variety of terms, including (but not limited to) Trans*, transsexual, gender-queer (GQ), gender-fluid, non-binary, gender-variant, crossdresser, genderless, agender, nongender, third gender, bi-gender, trans man, trans woman, trans masculine, trans feminine and neutrois.
Transgender	A person who lives as a member of a gender other than expected based on anatomical sex. Sexual orientation varies and is not dependent on gender identity. This is generally now known as ‘Trans*’.
Trans* Community	A loose category of people who transcend gender norms in a wide variety of ways. The central ethic of this community is unconditional acceptance of individual exercise of freedoms including gender and sexual identity and orientation.
Transition	The steps a Trans* person may take to live in the gender with which they identify. Each person’s transition will involve different things. For some this involves medical intervention, such as hormone therapy and surgeries, but not all trans people want or are able to have this. Transitioning also might involve things such as telling friends and family, dressing differently and changing official documents.
Trans* man	An identity label sometimes adopted by female-to-male

	Definition
	trans* people to signify that they are men while still affirming their history as females. Also referred to as 'transguy(s).'
Transphobia	The irrational fear of those who are gender variant and/or the inability to deal with gender ambiguity.
Transsexual	This was used in the past as a more medical term (similarly to homosexual) to refer to someone whose gender is not the same as, or does not sit comfortably with, the sex they were assigned at birth. This term can be seen as offensive for some. It is recommended not using as a default term, only when someone explicitly identifies as transsexual.
Trans* woman	An identity label sometimes adopted by male-to-female trans* people to signify that they are women while still affirming their history as males.
